Introduction

We at the Boston Foundation are extremely fortunate to know hundreds of remarkable “change makers.” From our donors and grantees to civic and grassroots leaders, we are honored to work side-by-side with those who are writing the script for Greater Boston’s future.

Two of the change makers featured in this report are community leaders who retired from the Foundation’s board this year: Rick Burnes, who had a tremendous impact on this organization over 10 years of service; and Gerald Chertavian, the founder of Year Up, one of the most innovative nonprofit organizations launched in Boston in recent decades.

Yet another article features Grace Fey, a current member of our board who is leading the campaign to strengthen the Foundation’s Permanent Fund for Boston. That crucial fund provides the flexible resources we need to make grants in Greater Boston every year and we thank her for her leadership in this important effort.

Strengthening philanthropy in general was a major theme during 2012. We are very proud that this year we launched the Equality Fund, a permanent fund with the mission of providing support to advance the equitable treatment of Lesbian, Gay, Bi-Sexual, Transgender and Queer individuals and their families. It’s the first fund of its kind in Greater Boston—and the committee that guides that fund is co-chaired by Catherine D’Amato, another member of our board.

We also merged with The Philanthropic Initiative, expanding mightily our capacity to advise our donors about strategic giving here and abroad. And we launched a new philanthropic resource for this community called the Giving Common, a tremendous online giving vehicle designed to facilitate contributions to nonprofits throughout Massachusetts.

Finally, we want to thank all of our donors, because they make all of our work possible. By conducting their giving through Donor Advised Funds at the Boston Foundation, they strengthen the entire organization. By co-investing in nonprofits with us, they increase the impact of our grantmaking. By contributing annually to the Civic Leadership Fund, they empower the Foundation and its many partners to make profound and positive change. And by planning to leave a legacy to our community through the Permanent Fund for Boston, they are strengthening Greater Boston’s community foundation far into the future.

About the Boston Foundation

All of the work of the Boston Foundation is guided by two strategic goals that reflect a deep commitment to strengthening our community:

Greater Boston Residents Are Successful and Thriving.
Greater Boston Communities Are Vibrant, Safe and Affordable.

Giving

Enhancing the Philanthropic Impact of Our Donors

The Boston Foundation combines our donors' aspirations and passion for giving with our deep understanding of the vital issues facing our community.

Through Donor Advised Funds, donors can make grants anywhere in the United States or abroad. These convenient funds operate much like a private foundation, without the administrative or payout burdens.

The Foundation also offers funds that allow donors to invest in the future of Greater Boston and the issues and organizations that have a profound impact on their lives—through gifts or bequests to the Permanent Fund for Boston.

And this year, the Boston Foundation merged with The Philanthropic Initiative (TPI), adding to our capacity to advise donors about how to engage in strategic and effective philanthropy here and around the world.

Supporting Nonprofits

Strengthening the Effectiveness of the Entire Sector

Through our grantmaking and special initiatives in Greater Boston, the Boston Foundation supports nonprofits across a wide range of issues, guided by our focus on people and place with a strategic focus on: Education to Career, Health and Wellness, Jobs and Housing, Community Safety and Civic and Cultural Vibrancy.

The Foundation also works to strengthen nonprofits and leaders through a range of work designed to enhance the long-term vitality of the Massachusetts nonprofit sector:

- ▲ Building the effectiveness of organizations and leaders through the Vision Fund and the Institute for Nonprofit Management and Leadership at Boston University
- ▲ Encouraging collaboration through the Catalyst Fund for Nonprofits and Collaborate Boston
- ▲ Strengthening the entire sector through research and advocacy

Having an Impact

Civic Leadership That is Working

The Boston Foundation is a major civic leader for Greater Boston and our region—with crucial support from the Civic Leadership Fund at the Boston Foundation, which raised more than $1.4 million this year.

We use a formula that is working for K-12 and higher education, workforce development, health, housing, cultural facilities, municipal finance and other critical areas:

- ▲ Cutting Edge Research
- ▲ Major Forums and Convenings
- ▲ Strategic, Proactive Grantmaking
- ▲ Task Forces and Coalitions
- ▲ Communications and Media
- ▲ Deep Public Policy Work

Through our Understanding Boston series, we identify the challenges facing our city and region, commission fresh research and share information through a series of forums that are attended by thousands of people every year.

The Foundation is also home to the Boston Indicators Project, which provides comprehensive information and analysis about every aspect of life in Greater Boston and our region through a cutting edge website and biennial bold reports.

“The future
does not belong to those who are content with today.”

Robert F. Kennedy

The Change Makers.

The people you will read about in this annual report most certainly are not “content with today.” In fact, there seems to be something in the very DNA of those who live and work in Greater Boston that makes them restless when it comes to today and highly ambitious when they think about the future.

Here you will read about an entire family of Boston Foundation donors who are giving far more than dollars, a group of strategic philanthropists taking on childhood hunger in Massachusetts, a social entrepreneur who founded an organization that is helping to close the “opportunity divide” and a young man who embodies that organization’s success.

Other stories are about a group of pediatricians who are just as concerned about “health” as they are about “health care,” an educator who has embraced the charter school model and run with it—as he did with a football in his youth—and a woman who was born in Chinatown and has returned to that vibrant neighborhood to help build its future.

Finally, you will learn about a group of dedicated donors and advisors who are helping the Boston Foundation strengthen the Permanent Fund for Boston, Greater Boston’s endowment fund. That irreplaceable resource has had an impact on all of the people profiled in these pages and countless others. We thank this determined group and we invite you to consider joining us, so that together we can be there to support the change makers of tomorrow.

Contributing Dollars, Time and Leadership

Butler's Hole is a magical spot where Nantucket Sound meets the Atlantic Ocean. It holds a special place in the hearts of the Burnes family and so when Nonnie and Rick Burnes decided to open a Donor Advised Fund at the Boston Foundation in 1994, they called it the Butler's Hole Fund.

Rick has been a venture capitalist since the early days of his career, co-founding Charles River Ventures in 1970. Nonnie is a Senior University Fellow at the Northeastern's School of Public Policy & Urban Affairs. From 2007 to 2009, she served as Massachusetts Commissioner of Insurance and prior to that was a Superior Court Judge. Both believe in the kind of philanthropy that involves far more than donating funds.

"I think donors should take responsibility for making sure that the dollars they invest are effectively spent," explains Rick. "One way to do that is to serve on the boards of nonprofits." With a passion for the importance of teaching technology, he has chaired the board of Boston's Museum of Science and served on the Boston Foundation's board. Nonnie currently chairs the board of Planned Parenthood of Massachusetts at a time when that organization's work is more important than ever.

"We have always encouraged the entire family to contribute to the causes and nonprofits they believe in," says Nonnie, "but we also hoped they would understand the importance of giving time and leadership." Rick adds, "I guess it worked: They were all on boards of nonprofits by the time they were in their thirties."

All three of their adult children also have their own Donor Advised Funds at the Foundation, all with the words "Butler's Hole" in the fund names. "They represent the next generation of philanthropists," says Nonnie, "and we're proud of the thoughtful way they are taking on that role."

The Burnes Family has four Donor Advised Funds at the Boston Foundation—and Nonnie and Rick Burnes (center) plan to leave a major bequest to the Permanent Fund for Boston.

Boston Chinatown Neighborhood Center has received operating support from the Boston Foundation to help build an even more vibrant neighborhood right in the middle of downtown Boston.

Collaborating for Chinatown's Future

Elaine Ng calls her beginnings a “common Chinese immigrant story.” Her father came to Boston from China at the age of 16 and was a restaurant worker before he learned English, joined the Army and eventually found a calling in civil rights work. When he had established himself, he traveled to Hong Kong and returned with his wife, who was just 17 and pregnant with Elaine. Her mother became a garment worker and the family lived in Chinatown until Elaine was nine years old, then moved to Roslindale because her mother was concerned about gang activity in Chinatown.

“Living in Roslindale had its own challenges,” she says. “No one looked like us! We were only the second Asian family in that neighborhood. And it was the ‘70s and busing was in full force.” She vividly remembers the rocks thrown at her on her way to school.

“Always,” she adds, “my identity was intertwined with Chinatown.” And so she returned. After graduating from UMass Boston, she eventually took a job developing youth programming at the Boston Chinatown Neighborhood Center. That was almost 20 years ago. For the last six years, she has served as Executive Director and guided the Center through the move a new building with a robust menu of programs for children and families.

Today, she is overseeing a major expansion of the Center into Quincy, where one-quarter of the population is Asian. “Because of the lack of affordable housing in Chinatown, the Asian demography is shifting,” she explains. “We decided that if we were to meet our mission, we should go to them instead of having them travel to us.”

She is also excited to be collaborating with the other leaders in the neighborhood to launch a cultural center and a library. “Organizations in Chinatown have come together,” she says, “to create something that will bring a new sense of vibrancy to this community for years to come.”

Closing the Opportunity Divide

At a State House rally on April 5th of this year, Dawdu Mahama-Amantanah stood before a crowd of people who were there to support the Coalition FOR Community Colleges—a group made up of more than 60 organizations from across Massachusetts intent on strengthening the state’s community college system. He spoke about what he called “the transfer wars,” wherein the credits he earned at a community college were worthless at another state college. He also described the quality of the education he received.

“I quickly learned that I was attending classes without enough books and very little guidance,” he said. “I worked so hard and spent so much money and came away with nothing. I know that Massachusetts has a skills gap. I’m here to say there is also an opportunity gap.”

After leaving college for financial reasons and working in a dead-end job, Dawdu heard about Year Up, an organization that gives urban young adults the skills, experience and support they need to qualify for professional careers and pursue higher education. Having completed his “year up,” Dawdu has a full-time position at State Street Bank and is working toward a college degree at UMass Boston. Year Up was launched in Boston in 2000 by Gerald Chertavian, a Boston Foundation donor and former board member, with early grants from the Boston Foundation and other funders inspired by his vision. Dedicated to closing what he calls the “opportunity divide,” Year Up has more than 3,400 alumni nationwide and serves 1,500 students per year in 11 cities—working with hundreds of corporate partners that provide internships for the students.

Year Up is a member of the Coalition FOR Community Colleges, which was convened by the Boston Foundation early this year and led to sweeping changes in the state’s community college system that were signed into law by Governor Deval

Gerald Chertavian, Year Up’s Founder and CEO, and Dawdu Mahama-Amantanah, a Year Up graduate, want to create more pathways to opportunity for young adults, in part by strengthening the Massachusetts community college system.

Patrick in July. The changes are designed to align community colleges with the workforce needs of the state. Massachusetts has a “skills gap” that has left some 100,000 positions unfilled when hundreds of thousands of people are unemployed, but unqualified for the open jobs.

“We desperately need a knowledge-based workforce in this country to remain competitive in the world,” says Gerald, “and community colleges are pivotal to that goal.” In fact, Year Up is working with community colleges in Baltimore and Miami to establish an on-campus Personal Training Corps program (PTC), based on the ROTC model. “We’re providing internships with businesses and support services that it would be hard for community colleges to offer,” he explains.

“I would have taken advantage of an opportunity like that,” says Dawdu. “I constantly think about everyone who hasn’t had the opportunities I’ve had through Year Up.” He adds, “I consider myself part of a movement to make America see the potential in all young people.”

Fighting for Children's Health

Dr. Barry Zuckerman, Chief of Pediatrics at Boston Medical Center (front), is nationally known for his lifelong, fierce advocacy on behalf of children's health. Today, he is taking on what he considers to be the number one risk to children's health: obesity and the sugar-sweetened beverages and juices that are the largest source of excess calories in children's diets. There is a strong association between obesity and the increase in Type 2 diabetes and other chronic illnesses.

"When I started to practice medicine, I would see one obese child every two or three days," he says. "Now we see three or four obese children a day and another two or three who are overweight. It's an epidemic." Making the point that sugar-sweetened beverages have no nutritional value, he adds, "The only time I would want to see children drink these beverages is if they were the victims of a famine and there was no other source of calories."

Dr. Zuckerman is joined in his efforts by the Healthy People/Healthy Economy Coalition, led by the Boston Foundation and NEHI, which has filed legislation that would eliminate the Massachusetts sales tax exemption on soda—in the process raising upwards of $50 million that could be directed toward public health initiatives.

Drs. Daniel Parry and Natalie Stavas, resident pediatricians at Boston Medical Center and Children's Hospital, are spearheading a campaign to ask pediatricians across the state to distribute "prescriptions" emphasizing the dangers of sugar-sweetened beverages. The cards bear an image of soda bottles crossed with the universal symbol for "no."

"I have found parents very receptive to these 'prescriptions,'" explains Dr. Parry. "They know sodas aren't healthy and they need a doctor's reinforcement to convince their children." Dr. Stavas adds, "Instead of prescriptions for illness, we think of them as prescriptions for health."

Pediatricians are partnering with the Healthy People/Healthy Economy Coalition—led by the Boston Foundation and the health policy institute NEHI—to end the tax exemption for soft drinks and candy.

Embracing Strategic Philanthropy

The Philanthropic Initiative (TPI) merged with the Boston Foundation this year, bringing with it nearly 25 years of experience in philanthropic advising to individuals, families, foundations and corporations in Boston, across the country and around the world. Two local philanthropists who have benefited from TPI's expertise are Ken Nickerson and Kate Deyst, a married couple who are the donors behind Eos Foundation.

"We had reached a time in our lives when we wanted to commit a major percentage of our income to philanthropy," explains Ken. So in 1999, he and Kate seized the day and launched Eos Foundation, named for the goddess of dawn and new beginnings. They put together an outstanding staff, headed by Andrea Silbert, and reached out to Ellen Remmer, now Managing Partner at TPI, to assist them in shaping what Ken calls "cohesive themes and strategies" for their philanthropy.

Kate Deyst, one of the founders of Eos Foundation, is working with the foundation's staff on a large investment in nutritious food access—an effort they hope will have a profound effect on child hunger in Massachusetts.

Ellen helped them design their first initiative, which reflected a passion of Ken's—breaking the cycle of intergenerational poverty in Boston by helping people to chart their own paths. It came to be called Boston Rising, and today is an independent agency.

Now they are focusing on a passion of Kate's, which is to make a profound difference in childhood hunger. Eos Foundation has funded a number of organizations focused on hunger and food and Kate has served on the Boston Food Council, which was launched by Mayor Menino in 2008 to help Bostonians access healthy, locally-sourced food while promoting the production of food as an economic development strategy.

"We've learned a tremendous amount about the issue of hunger and food production from the Council and from our grantees," says Kate, "and over the last year we've taken a remarkable 'learning tour' across the country, meeting with people who are working to alleviate hunger. They have been very generous about sharing their knowledge."

More than 700,000 people in Massachusetts are struggling to put food on the table, with 10.8 percent of households considered "food insecure." Hunger is particularly devastating for the youngest members of our state's families. When children are hungry, they are more likely to get sick, miss school and struggle to learn.

Over the next several years Eos will take on childhood hunger by investing at least $15 million in access to nutritious food—an effort they both hope will make a measurable difference. Ken says that while they are interested in outcomes and data and "a nuanced understanding" of what works and what doesn't, there is another impulse he and Kate follow. "Ultimately," he suggests, "philanthropy means a love of others. What tugs at you? What inspires you? Those are the most important questions we ask ourselves."

Educating for a Global Future

“Anyone in our society who has experienced success can usually trace their success to an individual, or an institution, that inspired them to dream and work hard to develop skills to accomplish their dreams. The Boston Renaissance Charter Public School is that kind of institution.”

This quote, from the Renaissance School’s Superintendent and CEO, Dr.

Roger Harris, is stenciled on a glass partition on the second floor of this remarkable school—in a spot where the sun shines through it, amplifying its message.

The Renaissance was founded in 1995 by a group of business and community leaders who wanted to offer the children of Boston a world-class education. For years it struggled, hampered by an inadequate facility in the South End and other challenges. But in 2010, under Roger’s leadership, the school moved to a beautiful, six acre, $39 million dollar student-centered campus in Hyde Park that offers an expansive, light atmosphere. The ceilings soar, as do the students.

Today, the Renaissance is the largest elementary school in Boston, but, in truth, it is more than a school. It stands as a beacon of academic, social and personal achievement for some of the city’s most underserved children: 98 percent are African American or Latino and 80 percent qualify for a free lunch.

Many struggle with health issues and have been diagnosed with special needs. “We strive to meet the myriad academic, social and emotional needs of our students by partnering with local businesses and community-based organizations to provide on-site services for children,” says Roger, “including a vision center with New England Eye Institute, a dental clinic with Tufts University Dental School, and social services with the Home for Little Wanderers. And Century Bank made it all possible.”

He is particularly proud that all students learn to understand and respect Chinese culture, speak and write Mandarin, read and write music—and play the piano. “We live in an ever-shrinking, multicultural world,” he explains. “We need to prepare students for a global economy where respect, tolerance and the ability to work cooperatively with people of diverse backgrounds will become a priority.”

Roger Harris was a halfback at Boston University, a Marine in Vietnam and a teacher in the Boston Public Schools during desegregation. Now he is waging—and winning—the most spirited fight of his life.

Ultimately, the Renaissance is an example of the kind of education charter schools can offer because of the autonomy enjoyed by its leaders and staff. Committed to educating the whole child, it balances a rigorous academic curriculum with a focus on visual and performing arts, physical education and technology—and has a school day designed to accommodate all of these activities.

In January of this year, the school’s Voices of Renaissance Choir received the ultimate recognition when it was invited to perform at the White House. President Obama and First Lady Michelle Obama took the time to shake the hands of each of the singers—embodying for the students the kinds of dreams that can come true when they are truly inspired to succeed.

Building Boston's Permanent Fund

The Boston Foundation opened its doors in 1915 at a time when the community foundation movement was sweeping the nation. While a number of cities established community foundations that year, they lacked the resources to actually begin making grants to nonprofit organizations.

But in 1917, a remarkable thing happened: A civic-minded Boston businessman named James Longley left a bequest of $4 million to the Boston Foundation. It was a staggering sum for the time and it catapulted Greater Boston's community foundation to the position of being the first in the country to make grants, showing the way for other foundations across the United States.

Since then, James Longley's bequest has been joined by those of hundreds of other generous individuals and families who care deeply about the people and places of Greater Boston.

"The Permanent Fund for Boston is an absolutely critical resource for our community," says Grace Fey, a Boston Foundation board member who chairs a committee made up of 13 donors and professional advisors who want to add $100 million in bequests and other legacy gifts by the Foundation's 100th anniversary in 2015.

"As a board member, I am acutely aware of the remarkable nonprofit organizations that receive major operating grants from the Foundation. They span all areas of life, from education to health to the arts and housing. And I see everything else the Foundation does for this community. That's why my husband, Ted, and I are leaving a bequest to the Permanent Fund for Boston and why I'm chairing this committee.

"Inspired by that first gift in 1917, the Boston Foundation is asking a provocative question of people who care deeply about our community: 'What Will You Be Doing in 100 Years?' It really makes you think about your legacy. Imagine what Mr. Longley has done for Greater Boston over the last 100 years. Imagine what he's doing today!"

Grace Fey (second from right), chairs the committee that is dedicated to adding $100 million to the Permanent Fund for Boston by the Foundation's 100th anniversary in 2015. Other members of the 13-person committee include (from left): Bill Nigreen, Bill Speciale and Jon Steffensen.

Thriving People. Vibrant Places.

The work of the Boston Foundation is guided by two expansive goals that reflect our deep commitment to strengthening the Greater Boston community through grantmaking, civic leadership and enhancing donor impact:

Greater Boston residents are successful and thriving
Greater Boston communities are vibrant, safe and affordable

We use all of the tools in our toolbox as we collaborate with our many partners to achieve results. These include: working with our donors to increase the impact of their giving; publishing cutting edge research; inviting the community to forums and conversations; convening grassroots, civic and business leaders for task forces and coalitions; informing and working with the media; engaging in deep public policy work; and investing our grantmaking resources in programs and initiatives that are aligned with the results we seek.

Support for all of these activities comes from the Permanent Fund for Boston, which has been built over the years through gifts and bequests from hundreds of generous donors. Our civic leadership work is supported by the Civic Leadership Fund, which has raised more than $9.5 million since it was established a decade ago.

On the following pages are brief summaries of just some of our work during 2012—including the strategies we are pursuing, some of the outcomes we hope to see and highlights of the progress we made this year in close partnership with numerous nonprofit, philanthropic, business and civic organizations.

As we work to meet these goals, we have five major objectives:

- ▲ Improve outcomes for Boston's residents across the education pipeline
- ▲ Increase the health and wellness of Greater Boston residents
- ▲ Increase job growth, economic competitiveness and equity in Greater Boston
- ▲ Increase the livability, affordability and safety of Boston neighborhoods
- ▲ Enhance civic and cultural vibrancy in Greater Boston

Strategy: Accelerate structural reform and promote autonomies in public schools in Boston

By 2015, we seek to work with our many partners to double the seats in autonomous schools, such as charter schools, in Boston—and improve student performance along the entire education pipeline.

Recent grants in this area include $183,000 to the Boston Plan for Excellence to support the Dudley Street Neighborhood Charter School. Among multi-year grants are $300,000 over three years to Unlocking Potential to support its operation of low-performing schools in Boston using the in-district model, $300,000 over three years to the Massachusetts Charter Public School Association to help expand and improve charter schools, and $200,000 over three years for Teach Plus to involve teachers in structural reform.

The Race to the Top Coalition, a consortium of Massachusetts business, civic and community leaders convened by the Boston Foundation, released its first progress report since playing a major part in passing statewide education reform. The report shows positive results for turnaround schools and charter schools.

Strategy: Increase the 2- and 4-year college graduation rate for low-income students of color and first-generation college students from Boston's public schools

In this area, we want to increase from 35% to 70% the college completion rate for Boston Public Schools graduates by 2017.

Our major investment is $1 million a year to the Success Boston College Completion Initiative, which is supported by 38 colleges and universities and numerous other public and private partners. Additional grants include $125,000 for the Commonwealth's Vision Project, to measure success rates at public higher education institutions.

Strategy: Promote the career advancement and economic security of low-income individuals

By 2015, we seek a 150% increase in the number of adult learners entering post-secondary institutions, an increase in certificates in key occupational areas and 3,500 low-income residents placed in career pathway jobs.

Grants include $800,000 over two years to SkillWorks, a public/private partnership led by the Boston Foundation, and $100,000 over two years to LIFT-Boston which helps low-income adults find jobs. We also support job training programs, including $300,000 over three years to Hebrew Senior Life and $300,000 over three years to Jewish Vocational Service.

The Coalition FOR Community Colleges, convened by the Boston Foundation, played a major role in passing sweeping reforms to the Massachusetts community college system designed to align them more closely with the workforce development needs of the state.

Strategy: Encourage healthy behaviors among Boston residents and increase access to healthy food and opportunities for physical activity

The goal is to reverse the epidemic of obesity, with a focus on reducing the number of Boston children who are either overweight or obese, and strengthening public health expenditures for efforts that promote wellness.

Grants include $100,000 for the state's Mass in Motion and Healthy Dorchester initiatives and $100,000 over two years to Victory Programs/Revision Urban Farm to improve food access for Dorchester and Mattapan residents.

The Healthy People/Healthy Economy Coalition, convened by the Boston Foundation and NEHI and dedicated to making Massachusetts the national leader in health and wellness, released its Second Annual Report Card and filed legislation to end the state sales tax exemption on soft drinks and candy and to restore physical activities to the state's schools.

Strategy: Grow local businesses and increase job growth and access for low-income residents

To strengthen economic competitiveness in Greater Boston, we are working with numerous partners to create 5,000 new jobs, create or retain 850 new businesses and increase investment in small businesses.

Grants include $50,000 to CropCircle Kitchen, Boston's only food business incubator, and $180,000 to Interise, which provides small business owners with education and access to networks and markets.

This year, the Boston Foundation, in collaboration with the Massachusetts Technology Collaborative, the Greater Boston Manufacturing Partnership and RBS Citizens, published Staying Power II, a report on manufacturing in Massachusetts, showing that this sector is still going strong and highlighting the need for skilled workers.

Strategy: Reduce the incidence of violence in Boston neighborhoods, especially among youth

StreetSafe Boston, a Boston Foundation initiative, aims to help gang members resolve longstanding feuds and disarm—as well as reach out to youth in the five neighborhoods most affected by violence to help them access services and education that leads to employment.

StreetSafe Boston received $1,200,000 this year as part of a five-year commitment. Another grant of $150,000 over three years went to Mothers for Justice & Equality, a grassroots organization devoted to ending neighborhood violence.

My Summer in the City, a Boston Foundation initiative that is also generously supported by our donors and other funders, kept 17 parks and playgrounds open with longer hours and funded more than 400 summer jobs for teenagers with 70 jobs earmarked for youth involved in the criminal justice system.

Strategy: Increase neighborhood stability and the production and preservation of affordable housing

By 2015, the Foundation seeks to help preserve 6,500 affordable housing units and produce 6,500 additional units, while saving 600 units from foreclosure.

The Foundation is supporting the groundbreaking Fairmount/Indigo CDC Collaborative with a grant of $1 million over five years for community development along that transit line. Other multiyear grants include $700,000 over three years to Local Initiatives Support Coalition (LISC) to leverage national funding for housing and community development.

The Boston Foundation received the U.S. HUD Secretary's Award for Community Foundations for helping drive the public/private partnerships that created the $22 million Neighborhood Stabilization Loan Fund.

Strategy: Strengthen and celebrate Boston through audience engagement and the elevation of culture

By 2015, the Boston Foundation seeks once-weekly arts instruction for 100% of all K-8 Boston Public Schools students and an increase in the stability of key cultural organizations.

Grants include $300,000 over three years to EdVestors to increase arts instruction in Boston's school system. Other grants went to increasing the stability of organizations, such as a $365,000 grant over five years to Jose Mateo Ballet Theater.

The state's Cultural Facilities Fund, which the Foundation helped to create, granted $5 million this year and the Foundation helped to catalyze the launch of MASSCreative, a statewide arts and advocacy organization. The Boston Foundation and Barr Foundation also launched a new phase of the Culture for Change initiative, which helps youth build fluency in the arts while taking leadership on issues of racial justice.

Applying for a Grant

A Focus on People and Place

The Boston Foundation has a strategic framework, called Thriving People/Vibrant Places, which guides our grantmaking, research, convening, public policy work and special initiatives.

All of the resources for our grantmaking in Greater Boston are from the Permanent Fund for Boston, which has been built over the years through gifts and bequests from Boston-area donors who care deeply about our community.

The Foundation invests the majority of its resources in proven or promising organizations and initiatives that seek to deepen their impact or bring their work to scale and are significantly aligned with the two major goals and five objectives below:

Goals: Greater Boston residents are successful and thriving
Greater Boston communities are vibrant, safe and affordable

Objectives:

- ▲ Improve outcomes for Boston's residents across the education pipeline
- ▲ Increase the health and wellness of Greater Boston residents
- ▲ Increase job growth, economic competitiveness and equity in Greater Boston
- ▲ Increase the livability, affordability and safety of Boston neighborhoods
- ▲ Enhance civic and cultural vibrancy in Greater Boston

Types of Support

There are three principal types of support available from the Foundation's discretionary grantmaking resources:

Competitive Grants: At any point in time, there are 150 to 175 organizations in the Foundation's competitive grants portfolio. Most of these partners are doing work that is highly aligned with the approaches and end-state results to which the Foundation seeks to contribute. A limited sub-set of those partners are doing important work outside of those areas. Over the past three years, the Foundation has made a shift toward making larger, multi-year, operating support grants to core partners, as well as program and project grants where appropriate. Applying for a competitive grant starts with a simple on-line Letter of Inquiry (LOI). Please speak with a member of the Foundation's Program staff before submitting an LOI.

Vision Fund: These are grants of up to $7,500, awarded to organizations for capacity-building projects including board development, strategic planning, exploring or piloting a new program area, or planning for collaboration with other organizations. Priority is given to organizations that are not likely to be eligible for competitive grants. Applying for a Vision Fund grant starts with an on-line application accessed from our website.

Initiative Grants: A significant amount of the Foundation's grant funds are distributed through special initiatives. Often, these funds are not open to broad application—for example StreetSafe Boston, Success Boston, CHAMPS Boston and others. At times—as with SkillWorks—there are periodic Requests for Proposals (RFPs) for organizations that are defined as eligible by the specific initiative. Information about such RFPs is available on the Foundation's website.

We invite you to visit our website for detailed information about how to reach us and how apply for a grant. Please go to www.tbf.org and choose "Investing in Nonprofits."

Choosing the Contribution That's Right for You

We accept gifts of cash, stocks and bonds, complex assets, including closely held or restricted stock, gifts of real estate and LLC or partnership interests. Whether you make a charitable gift during your lifetime or through your estate, we can accommodate your giving plans.

Boston Foundation, to help you navigate challenges and create, implement and evaluate tailored philanthropic strategies that may include or go beyond grantmaking.

Meeting Your Goals Through a Donor Advised Fund

The Boston Foundation has been a Donor Advised Fund expert for more than 30 years and has hundreds of these funds—ranging in size from $10,000 to $40 million. A Donor Advised Fund operates much like a private foundation, without the administrative or payout burdens. You make unlimited grants anywhere in the U.S. or abroad when it is most convenient for you—and receive the maximum charitable tax deduction every time you add to your fund. Only one simple form is required to establish a fund.

Incorporating Charitable Giving Into Your Estate Planning

We also offer many ways to incorporate charitable giving into your estate planning—and will help you decide which type of gift is right for you. You can make a planned gift by will or trust, gifts of retirement plan assets and life insurance and gifts that pay you income and preserve assets for your heirs. Your gift can benefit any type of named fund or combination of funds (Donor Advised, Designated, Field of Interest or the Permanent Fund for Boston).

Having an Impact Through the Civic Leadership Fund

Many Boston Foundation donors and others make an annual gift to the Civic Leadership Fund, which fuels innovation by helping the Foundation identify and address critical challenges facing our community. Through gifts to this fund, the Foundation publishes cutting-edge research, holds compelling public forums and creates action plans for positive change, making real progress in education reform, health and wellness, smart-growth housing and our cultural infrastructure.

A Merger to Strengthen Our Community

In early 2012, the Boston Foundation entered into a historic partnership to offer a new level of customized consulting and support to our donors and the broader community. Our merger with The Philanthropic Initiatives (TPI) creates new avenues to increase the impact of your giving—whether it is focused locally, nationally or internationally and regardless of the giving vehicles you use.

Through the TPI team, the Foundation is well-positioned to help families, foundations and corporations design and implement a wide range of creative philanthropic strategies that may include grantmaking or go beyond. We can conduct deep research, help you find focus, guide “next generation” engagement or provide ongoing coaching to make your philanthropy more effective and rewarding.

What Will You Be Doing in 100 Years?

Help Us Build the Permanent Fund for Boston

In 1917, a Boston businessman named James Longley left a large bequest to the Permanent Fund for Boston. It was so large that it made Greater Boston’s community foundation the first in the country to make grants.

Today, he is helping Boston Public Schools graduate Elisio Depina fulfill his dream of a college education through an initiative called Success Boston, which receives major support through the Foundation’s Permanent Fund for Boston.

To mark our 100th Anniversary in 2015, the Boston Foundation is reaching out to our donors and others to establish named funds within the Permanent Fund for Boston and thereby strengthen this critical fund, which supports all of our grantmaking in Greater Boston and gives us the flexible resources needed to respond to the most urgent needs of the day.

We Invite You to Join Us

The Boston Foundation has many ways to incorporate planned and legacy giving into your estate plan to benefit the Permanent Fund for Boston. We can help you decide which type of gift is right for you. You can create a named fund through a flexible, unrestricted gift or direct your gift to an issue, population or cause you care about deeply. Make a permanent gift to Boston’s primary endowment with confidence that it will always be used to meet the most urgent needs facing Greater Boston.

For more information about helping us build the Permanent Fund for Boston, becoming a donor or working with TPI, call the Development Office at 617-338-1700 or visit the Foundation’s website at www.tbf.org and choose Giving.

2012 Financials

The Boston Foundation has a mandate both to fulfill its role as Greater Boston’s community foundation today—by maximizing dollars available for making grants—and to ensure that the charitable dollars entrusted to the Foundation are available to continue this work tomorrow and in perpetuity. Robust development efforts and a well-diversified investment strategy enable the Foundation to meet these objectives.

Fund for the 21st Century

The Boston Foundation offers three separate investment pools within the Fund for the 21st Century. These three pools allow donors to select the option that best matches the time horizon of their charitable giving plans. Donors may also customize their asset allocation by investing among all three pools. The Balanced Plus Pool asset mix is expected to produce the highest long-term investment return. Accordingly, the Boston Foundation invests its endowment assets in the Balanced Plus Pool.

Financial Oversight

The Foundation’s Investment Committee establishes investment policy and monitors the individual investment managers and their performance, and the Board sets each year’s spending rate. The Investment Committee is assisted by an independent investment consulting firm.

The assets of the Balanced Plus Pool include not only traditional stock and bond investments, but participation in private equity, venture capital, real assets (real estate, timber and energy) and flexible capital strategies. Diversification among multiple asset classes helps to reduce the volatility of the Foundation’s endowment and should moderate market risk.

The Spending Policy

By using a spending policy, the Foundation helps to ensure that the charitable funds will be protected for the future, while continuing to have the most impact today. The 2012 spending rate was 6.4% for its permanently restricted discretionary funds.

Notes: Performance is shown net of investment manager fees. Past performance is no indication of future results.

For Fiscal Year 2013, the Board again approved a spending rate of 6.4%. The Foundation uses a smoothing mechanism that helps balance the current endowment market value and the previous level of spending. Spending is equal to 70% of spending from the previous year, adjusted for inflation, plus 30% of the 6.4% spending rate applied to the current market value.

Merger with The Philanthropic Initiative

Effective January 1, 2012 the Philanthropic Initiative, Inc. (TPI) merged with the Boston Foundation as a new and significant business unit of the Foundation. TPI designs, carries out and evaluates philanthropic programs for individual donors, families, foundations and corporations. The experience and reputation of TPI have significantly expanded the range of philanthropic services the Foundation now offers. During the six-month period ending June 30, 2012, the operations of TPI added $1,053,000 of service fee income to the operations of the Foundation. In addition, TPI's net assets of $600,000 at the time of the merger have been recognized as a contribution due to merger.

Financial Analysis

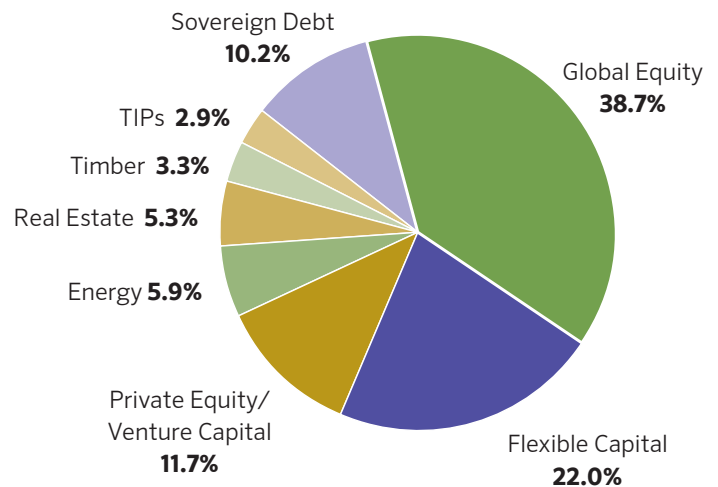

Total assets of the Boston Foundation declined from $860 million at June 30, 2011 to $804 million at June 30, 2012. For the year net investment returns were 0.0%. During this period, the Foundation received $59.8 million of contributions and made $98.4 million of grants. Expenditures for program support and operating expenses totaled $179 million thus explaining the change in total assets. Although the investment environment was uncertain during the year, the Foundation continued its investment in the communities that it serves.

Audited Financial Statements

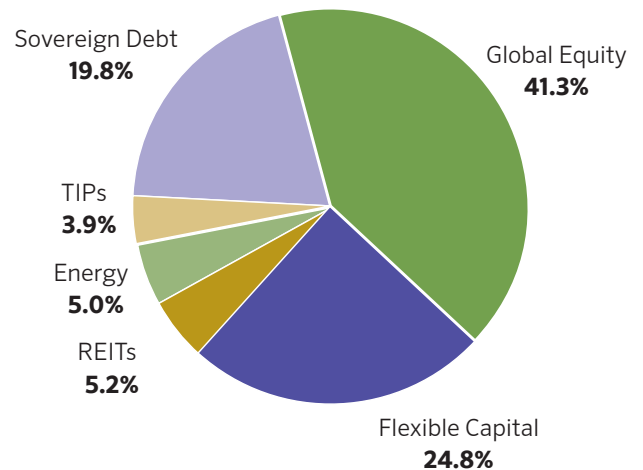

The Foundation's financial statements are prepared under policies and procedures overseen by the Foundation's independent Audit Committee and the Board of Directors. The statements are audited by KPMG LLP. A summary of the audited financial statements is shown on page 36. The audited statements and form 990 are available on our web site at www.tbf.org.

Boston Foundation Funds

For close to 100 years, hundreds of individuals, families and businesses have strengthened the Greater Boston community immeasurably by establishing and contributing to funds at the Boston Foundation. The Foundation works closely with donors to strengthen their giving—and helps an ever expanding number of individuals and families take advantage of planned and legacy giving opportunities to benefit the future of our community. The following pages list all of the funds that are held by the Foundation and the many donors who have contributed to them. Each fund has its own name, purpose and history, but all of them gain strength from being managed and invested together—and all of them contribute to strengthening Greater Boston’s community foundation for today and the future.

New Donors to the Permanent Fund for Boston

Donors to the Civic Leadership Fund

This critical fund helps to fuel the Boston Foundation's highly effective formula for civic leadership, which includes: publishing cutting edge research; holding major forums and convenings; conducting strategic and proactive grantmaking; forming task forces and coalitions; using communications and the media—and engaging in deep public policy work. A number of areas of community life have benefited from this work, including health and wellness, public education, smart growth housing, cultural facilities funding, municipal finance reform and CORI reform. We thank all of this year's generous donors.

Discretionary Funds

Many donors have established funds that are totally unrestricted or have quite broad purposes, giving the Boston Foundation flexibility in the way the income is used. These are the primary funds for which Greater Boston area nonprofit organizations may apply. They provide support to programs that address a broad range of community needs. The following is a list of all Discretionary Funds established at the Boston Foundation since 1915.

The Permanent Fund for Boston

The Permanent Fund for Boston is the most flexible fund the Boston Foundation holds, giving our staff and board the crucial resources they need to respond to the most critical issues facing contemporary Greater Boston. The Foundation is dedicated to building this important fund that supports crucial activities in education, health, housing, workforce development, arts and culture—and all areas that have an impact on Greater Boston. The following includes donors who have made gifts totaling more than $5,000 to this fund, with the year of their first contribution noted in parentheses.
